GURWIN JEWISH NURSING & REHABILITATION CENTER VOLUNTEERS RECEIVE “STUDENTS BUILDING BRIDGES” AWARD
Teens honored for their efforts for building a more civil society

Commack, NY— Teen volunteers at Gurwin Jewish Nursing & Rehabilitation Center Niara Magezi (Dix Hills) of Commack High School and Brennan Rosenblatt (Melville) of Half Hollow Hills East High School were presented with the Students Building Bridges Award by the Jewish Community Relations Council of Long Island (JCRC-LI) at a ceremony held at the Gurwin Center. The award recognizes community youth for their efforts to help create a more civil society, and is part of the Yom HaShoah Holocaust Remembrance Program sponsored by the JCRC-LI and Suffolk County State Senate and Assembly Delegations.

Ms. Magezi, a junior at Commack High School, has been volunteering at Gurwin for the past three years. Her time spent with the residents and assisting staff on the nursing units has given her the opportunity to learn about the many paths in healthcare. She is planning for a career in the medical field, specializing in dermatology.

Mr. Rosenblatt first came to Gurwin as a high school sophomore, befriending many residents during his weekly visits, updating them on his very active life and sharing his experiences with them. Now a graduating senior heading to Georgia Tech to study engineering this fall, he says the time spent with his Gurwin friends is as important to him as it is to them.

This year's Yom HaShoah Holocaust Remembrance Program featured guest speaker and Holocaust survivor Meir Ushero vitz who recounted his life as a Jewish youth in Poland during World War II and his imprisonment in several Polish concentration camps, including the notorious Auschwitz. Several Holocaust survivors from Gurwin Jewish ~ Fay J. Lindner Residences assisted living community were in attendance to meet Mr. Ushero vitz and to help recognize the Gurwin volunteers and other student honorees.
