Metropolitan Operas

Tuesday Mornings in the Theater at 10:00am

Tues, May 2nd: 10:00 "The Hours" (2022)
Part 1 @ 10-11:45, Part 2 @ 1:15-2:20

The compelling work focuses on a trio of women from three different eras: Virginia Woolf, who is beginning a novel outside London in 1923; Laura Brown, a housewife in the Los Angeles suburbs in 1949; and Clarissa Vaughan, an editor in New York at the end of the 20th century. Sopranos Reneé Fleming and Kelli O'Hara and mezzo-soprano Joyce DiDonato star as the opera's three heroines.

Tues, May 9th: 10:00 "Ernani" (1983)
Part 1 @ 10-11:45, Part 2 @ 1:15-1:45

The great Luciano Pavarotti is at his best as the wronged nobleman turned bandit. A beautiful and heartbreaking Leona Mitchell is Elvira, the woman he loves. But she is also pursued by two other men: King Don Carlo (Sherrill Milnes in one of his greatest roles) and her aged guardian, Don Ruy Gomez de Silva (a superb Ruggero Raimondi).

Tues, May 16th 10:00 "Adriana Lecouvreur" (2019)
Part 1 @ 10-11:45, Part 2 @ 1:15-2

Starring superstar soprano Anna Netrebko and mezzo-soprano Anita Rachvelishvili, as the fearsome Princess of Bouillon, and tenor Piotr Beczala, as her ardent lover, Maurizio.

Tuesday, May 23rd: 10:00 "Anna Bolena" (2011)
Part 1 @ 10- 11:45 and Part 2 @ 1:-2:25

Queen Anne Boleyn is trapped in an unhappy marriage to King Henry VIII (Ildar Abdrazakov) whose roving eye has settled on another woman—Jane Seymour (Ekaterina Gubanova), Anna's friend, but now her unwitting rival. Add in Anna's early love, Percy (Stephen Costello), just returned to the court from exile, and the result is a haunting account of Queen Anna's tragic final days.

Tues, May 30th: 10:00 "Three Divas" (2021)
10-11:25

Three of opera's leading lights came together amid the regal splendor of the Royal Opera of Versailles. Sopranos Ailyn Pérez and Nadine Sierra joined mezzo-soprano Isabel Leonard for a dazzling program of arias, duets, and trios.

92nd Street Y Programs

Sunday, May 7th at 10:00am

Simone Porter, violin & Rohan De Silva, piano, play Strauss and more

The exciting young violinist Simone Porter has been hailed for her virtuosity, lush sound, and probing intellect.

She joins us for her 92NY debut in our newly renovated Buitenwieser Hall, showcasing the talent that has been making both audiences and critics take notice. Her bold solo set includes the New York premiere of Drishti – a work written for her by acclaimed Indian-American composer Reena Esmail, and named for a focus concept in yoga – and Esa-Pekka Salonen's joyful, Pierrot Lunaire-inspired Lachen Verlernt, a piece that has become a contemporary touchstone of the solo violin repertoire. Porter and De Silva close the program with Strauss's lyrical E-flat Major Sonata, reflecting the range of talent and viewpoint of this compelling young artist.

Sunday, May 21st at 10:00am

Stefan Jackiw, violin; Alisa Weilerstein, cello; and Daniil Trifonov, piano, play Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, and more

One of the great chamber music events of the New York City season! Three of the world's most revered musicians – violinist Stefan Jackiw, cellist Alisa Weilerstein, and pianist Daniil Trifonov – join for their first-ever NYC appearance as a trio.

Their gorgeous, thoughtfully crafted program invites each musician's brilliance to be on full display: Jackiw and Trifonov open the program with Lutoslawski's Partita – a fascinating 1984 work with a nod to Baroque keyboard music. The thrillingly matched duo of Weilerstein and Trifonov perform Rachmaninoff's rapturous Sonata for Cello and Piano. And the three musicians come together in the program's second half for Tchaikovsky's epic, nearly symphonic A-Minor Piano Trio. Filled with bravura passages, moody tender beauty, and a heart-wrenching finale, it's a spectacular showcase for this trio of premier musicians.

April in Paris Art Show

April 19th, 2023

This year's art show featured the work of 38 artists. The work was made over the past year at one of the various art and art therapy classes on the calendar.

Congratulations to all of our artists on a very impressive display of hard work.
